Dear clients, partners, and friends,

Greetings from Ukraine! This week, our entire top management team had the chance to spend time in Nikopol, where we saw our production process first hand, held important discussions, and joined our colleagues in early celebrations for the upcoming Metallurgist Day. Andrey Krasiuk and I filmed video for our American client, demonstrating the on-time shipment of their order, which our team produced with an impressive lead time. If you'd like a video update about the situation in Nikopol or the status of your order, please don't hesitate to ask me. We are more than happy to provide this additional layer of communication to keep you fully informed and assured.

Our operations are proceeding as planned. We have a steady water supply, energy, essential raw materials, and our logistics and equipment are working without any problems. With the help of our devoted and motivated team, we're keeping things moving.

Our team in Nikopol sends a big thank you to all our clients. Each order we receive isn't just about business, it's a signal of your confidence in our abilities and commitment. Every order fuels our motivation and helps us stay strong during these tough times.

We're always ready to serve you in a better and faster way. Getting more orders from our clients will help us keep our momentum, support our hardworking team, and ensure the smooth running of our operations. We're here and ready to meet your needs as we continue to move forward together.

Best regards,
